N+1 PRESENTS

IMPACT VENTURE PARTNERS

PORTFOLIO VENTURE · RAISE NOW OPEN

UNIFORMITYS

Dressed as One. School uniforms made closer to home, with a local team ready to grow.

RAISING, IN TRANCHES

R500k → R1.5m → R5m

To build Uniformitys' own factory and shop in Kabokweni, so it can make uniforms for every learner locally instead of about 10% today. That reaches cash positive in 2028 and about R20m revenue across 16 schools by 2031, with no further raise planned.

+15
local manufacturing jobs added in Kabokweni, team of 5 to 20 by 2031

~R20m
per year in uniform production moved from Johannesburg to Kabokweni by 2031

16
schools fully served by 2031, up from 4 today

2028
cash positive, no further raise planned

WHY UNIFORMITYS EXISTS

In Kabokweni, Mpumalanga, thousands of families need school uniforms every year, and there is nowhere local to buy them. Parents travel to town and try to match colours and badges themselves, or buy from a few informal sellers.

Sphiwe Masinga grew up with this. He saw a simple product that the schools around him needed, and that nobody was supplying.

Sphiwe with uniform samples, Kabokweni.

WHY WE BACKED HIM

Sphiwe is the classic township founder N+1 exists to back. The business is no rocket science: good uniforms, made close to the schools, sold straight to families. What he had was the market, the school relationships and the drive to do the work.

At the end of 2024, N+1 put in R120k so he could buy stock and leave his call-centre job. Since then we have supported him with strategy, accounts, brand and design while he built the business school by school.

WHERE IT IS NOW

Learners at one of the schools Uniformitys now serves.

Four schools are fully on board, and Uniformitys has sold to a handful of others, but it can supply only about 10% of their learners, because bought-in stock from Johannesburg takes up to three months.

The next 5 or 6 schools are ready for a full ramp-up, and 23 schools have expressed real intent to make Uniformitys their supplier. Sphiwe has proved the demand and started making locally. He is ready for the next step.

WHAT THE RAISE BUILDS

Raising	R5m, in three tranches: R500k, then to R1.5m, then to R5m, to build its own factory and shop in Kabokweni
Unit	A school of about 1,000 learners is worth about R1m per year once uniforms are made locally
Path	Base case reaches R10.8m revenue and cash positive in 2028, about R20m by 2031, with growth after that paid from its own cash

N+1'S ROLE FROM HERE

N+1 is a permanent partner. With this round we move from advisor to operating partner: we build and install the ordering, payment, stock and production system, and run operating finance and reporting alongside Sphiwe.

Tailor at work in the Kabokweni workshop.

READ NEXT

1. Concept note, one page
2. Pitch deck, 12 slides, shared by link

3 Investment note, with terms and term sheet

4 Investor model and data room

Matt Beckett, Venture Partner, N+1: Impact Venture Partners · matt@np1.co.za · 083 457 4119
Sphiwe Masinga, Founder, Uniformitys · sphiwe@uniformitys.co.za · 082 595 0723

by N+1